Dear all,

It gives us immense pleasure to invite and welcome all Ethiopian College and Universities Lecturers, researchers and all Indian Universities Academicians and researchers, Industry Delegates and researchers from across the globe etc, to participate and present their research manuscripts in International e-Conference on "Multidisciplinary Studies" organized by the Akmonlink College, LagaTafuSubcity, Sheger City, Oromia, Ethiopia (Approved by Government of Ethiopia), on 26TH& 27TH October 2024 and your esteem participation is cordially solicited.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASING IN RURAL ETHIOPIA

Ethiopia is one of the fastest-growing economies in Sub-Saharan Africa, driven by investment in development programs. As a result of population growth and migration, Ethiopia is urbanizing fast from a low base, suggesting a strong need for appropriate management and efficient utilization of its young work force. Labor market analysis can support assessing the performance of the economy's ability to provide jobs for Ethiopians and absorb the growing labor force. This note provides evidence on the latest labor market developments and employment dynamics in Ethiopia, utilizing up-to-date labor market indicators and data from latest three rounds of the Ethiopia Socioeconomic Survey (ESS) of 2014, 2016, and 2019. The labor market indicators include, among others, labor force participation rate (LFPR), unemployment rate, employment to population ratio (EPR), share of youth not in employment, education, or training (NEET), status in employment, sectoral employment, and earnings for those in wage employment. The statistics on the labor market outcomes are disaggregated by location (urban/rural), region, age groups, and sex wherever possible. Ethiopia's labor market structure mimics a typical labor market structure of a low-income economy. Overall, between 2014 and 2019, standard labor market indicators improved. However, the structure of the labor market in urban and rural Ethiopia is diverse with International figures masking large differences across space, sex, and age. The share of the working-age population in total population stood at 54 percent in 2019 and growing over time. The labor market of Ethiopia is characterized by a high and increasing employment-to-working age population ratio (EWPR). The EWPR increased from 59 percent in 2014 to 65 percent in 2019. EWPR is significantly lower in urban Ethiopia (48 percent) than in rural Ethiopia (73 percent) and the EWPR for men (79 percent) is higher than that of women (52 percent). As in many low-income countries, unemployment rates are low at the International level. However, there are considerable differences across locations and gender. Unemployment is much higher in urban areas (19 percent) compared to rural areas (6 percent). Female unemployment is almost three times the rate of male unemployment.
